

London 2^d Novemb. 1846.

My dear Sir

I had this pleasure on the 28th Ult^o acknowledging your letter of the 10th on the subject of the Organ.

I now beg to enclose the Invoice, which after deducting my Commission, amounts to £85. 16. 6 nett Cash. I have already mentioned my having paid the Builder the amount of his account.

You will observe that I have valued the Organ, for Insurance, at £120.

I sincerely trust that it may arrive safe, and free from any sea damage. I also hope that you may be able to put it properly together, aided by the written Directions which accompany the Organ, and of which I send you a Duplicate herewith.

Possibly there may be at Athens some one who understands the mechanism of the instrument. I saw it reportedly during its construction, and when complete I heard it played upon.

After exhibiting its various powers, I begged Rev^d J. H. Hill Esq^r & Dr L Athens

I begged that the 100 Psalm might be played, as I could understand a tune so conversant to all, and I considered that the tone and powers of the instrument were highly satisfactory.

If the money had been available,
I certainly should have preferred giving the order to Bishop, or Hill, or Robson, as they have good reputations & names, but their charge would have been at least double what has been paid to Pitcher. In fact Bishop would not take the order, under £180 - Let us trust that the organ sent will prove satisfactory in every way, and answer the purpose quite as well as if double the price

had been paid for it.

I remain,

Yours sincerely

Philip James Green

I have Consigned the organ to Mess^{rs} Johnsen & Co - The Freight I have agreed at a very low rate $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ per foot.
and Freight & Purview amounts to £ 6. 14. 1 to be paid at Athens.

P. J. Green
London

2 Nov. 1846

Wm. 28th Nov

[Faint, illegible handwritten text, possibly bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.]