Malta Protestant College.

May 26th 1855.

Reverend and dear Sir

I hope you will pardon me for not having written to you for all the time that I have been here, partly being for not finding an opportunity and partly for putting it off from steamer to steamer.

I am very well satisfied with the College both for health and also for knowledge.

I suppose you have heard that our examinations will be sooner than what we thought at the commencement of this term, on the 29th of this month: and the reason why they will be so soon is because the new head master is expected to be here either by the ~~next~~ port or the one after it, and he wants to have enough time to give some lectures about astronomy of which he is very fond.

The weather that we have now here is very curious, it is every <sup>day</sup> changing and the doctor
does not permit us to bathe yet.

As regards to exercise I must say that we had not very much of it the last term,
but now I think we will have more, since we have launched our large boat to day, and we all had a very good pull.

I am very glad to say that everyone
of the Greek boys and of the rest are all in very good health and especially the boy that came last, Mauromates, is growing

quite a handsome stout young gentleman.

Give my best love to Mrs Hill, also to Mr and Mrs Buell and tell them that I have received their letter.

Give my compliments to Miss Elisabeth
Montaxkes and also to all my other friends.

I remain your sincere
and faithful friend.

A Pyllas.
